TENNIS, EVERYONE?

It was an encouraging, even inspiring sight for a tennis player. Sixty-one, count 'em, 61 seventh and eighth graders were out for tennis at Yoe Courts, trying out for a junior high team, both boys and girls.

That is almost as many who went out for team sports in the same system this fall, either football or basketball.

Both junior high and high school are teaching individual sports in physical education classes, tennis among other sports people can play all their lives.

In this case, 61 youngsters were swinging rackets or waiting their turn for two courts with nets and one without.

It suggests that tennis, like golf or other non-contact sports, is a rousing success to these youngsters, who are not yet in high school.

It suggests the immediate need for more tennis courts. Yoe High School's are still not enough for even the high school, let alone public use.

This is an interesting development and worthy of school board interest.

About 15 are out for high school tennis teams, we understand.

Having put on a couple of clinics over the past five years, none as large as this turnout, we are prejudiced. But if the public school are truly public schools, they will respond to this fantastic turnout in only two grades and build some more tennis courts, a few at or near Cameron Junior High and some additional ones at or near Yoe Campus.

The City might help. Talk has been long, but fruitless for a summer recreation program. Well, this turnout of 61 youngsters at 12 and 13 for just one sport is a significant start.

They have their own rackets. They have the energy. They have some coaching. But they have limited facilities on which to play.

It would be a great service to encourage this development by supplying in reasonably short order the facilities to maintain the interest and, even, make it grow.

It is another sign this community is changing in interests, this time sports, and that individual development is of great interest to Cameron Schools and its parent-patrons.

Elections Nearing For Cities, Schools

No absentee ballots have been cast so far in the Cameron school board election, to be held Saturday, April 1.

An uncontested race is seen for that election, with Dana Kestenbaum and Fredwill Horning filing for election to two places on the board.

In the city election set for April 4, Gene Blake is the only mayoral candidate. Lester Turner has filed for reelection to Place 1 on the city council, and Hubert Knight has filed for election to that place.

For Place 2, now held by Monroe Fuchs, Lincoln Mondrik and James Kahler, both first time candidates, have filed for that post.

In Rogers, eleven candidates have filed for four posts in the city election set for April 1. Filing for mayor are Lee Goman, mayor pro tem; Dean Gommert, and Lucio Munoz.

Incumbent Mayor Wayne Crawford has filed for reelection as a councilman. Also seeking the three council seats are Elmer Don Williams, LeRoy Klements, Bill Henderson, John Garza, Billy Ray Crow, Bill Reed and Mrs. Lucio Munoz.

In the Rogers school election two have filed for two places on the board. Incumbent Daniel C. Lesikar has filed for reelection and Barton Weems has filed for the place now held by Clayton Clowers, who is not seeking reelection.

Three candidates have filed for two places on the Buckholts School Board. They are A. W. Zajicek Jr., filing for a second term, Joe Biskup and Mrs. Minnie Kuzel, both first time candidates.

Three candidates are also running for two school board places at Milano. They are incumbents Ray Whited and Clarence Hayman and first time candidate Melvin Graham. The election is scheduled for April 1.

In Rockdale, incumbent councilmen Frank Hyder and E. E. Henry have drawn opponents in their bids for reelection. Sessions Pounders, H. D. Maxwell and Rev. George Doss are also candidates for the council.

In the Rockdale school election, W. P. Hogan and Glenn Hodges, and a first time candidate, Duncan D. McGregor, are unopposed on the school ballot. Hodges and Hogan, school board president, are seeking new 3-year terms.

Tickets On Sale For Chamber Banquet, Program

Tickets are now on sale for the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet set for April 6, 7:30 p.m. in Methodist Fellowship Hall.

A new and different type celebration is planned for this year, and Cameron's German and Czech folk dancers will perform native dances.

Homecooked authentic Czech and German food, colorful costumes, music and a general holiday spirit will prevail. Mrs. Maurina Corley, vocalist, will also be on the program and the McCullin award for 1971 will be awarded by last year's winner, Fredwill Horning.

Tickets may be purchased from these members of the ticket committee: Dana Kestenbaum, Gene Smitherman, Monroe Fuchs, Porter Young, Bob Ellett, Narvie Caperton, Jimmy Bledsoe, Forrest Sapp, Jim Camp, and LaVert McKinney.

Tickets may also be purchased from the Chamber of Commerce office before April 3. Members of the arrangements committee are Robert Ellett, Don Humble, Gene Blake and L. W. Stroup Jr.

Deadline Nears For License Plates

Deadline for installing new 1972 vehicle license plates is midnight, Saturday, April 1.

Tax Assessor-Collector Valter White said his office will be open until noon Saturday for vehicle owners to purchase their plates.

State law says the 1971 license plates expire at midnight Saturday.

NEW PROGRAM AT SCHOOL - Libby Steadman is one of 43 Yoe High School students working and studying under the Distributive Education program at school and local businesses. Libby works at the Cameron Nursing Home.

Students Protest Dress Code

KILLEEN

About 200 students walked out of classes at Killeen High School Thursday morning in apparent protest of the school's new interpretation of its dress code. Principal James K. Doughty, whose resignation was accepted by the school board Tuesday, said that the students left their classes at 9:30 a.m. About 50 returned to their classes and the remaining students moved into the high school auditorium for a discussion.

A question and answer session was held with Jim Valentine, urban renewal planner in the Texas Department of Community Affairs, and Bruce Gaines, planning director for the Heart of Texas Council of Governments.

Dress Code Stays

GEORGETOWN

2 Fifth Graders Have Ideas In Governor's Report

Two fifth graders at Ada Henderson had their ideas included in the "Report to the Governor" authored by the Governor's White House Conference on Children and Youth. They are Wayne Elley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Elley and Sidney Youngblood son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Youngblood.

During "Youth Participation Week" Oct. 12-18, schools were requested to submit PIPPS (Problem Identification and Proposed Practical Solutions) to the Texas State Task Forces on certain subject areas. Wayne's and Sidney's PIPPS were chosen after being sent to the Governor's conference for review.

Arnett L. Zelisko, principal of Ada Henderson, presented the two students with personal copies of the report, "Children and Youth," just received from Glenn McAllister, executive director, as his thanks for their interest and participation.

THE LIBRARY OF CONGRESS new addition, Madison Memorial Building, is under construction on Capitol Hill in Washington, and Sunset granite from Marble Falls will be used in base

DE Students Work With New Program

Everyday 43 students leave Yoe High School following morning classes and go to jobs in the Cameron area. They don't go just for a tour or to be on-lookers, but as participants in the business world. The reason is that Cameron schools have joined the vocational training field and the reaction has been enthusiastic from both students and local cooperating businesses.

A small cooperative education program started three years ago in Yoe High School with a few vocational agriculture students working part time in local farm related industry. This year it has expanded to a three-phase program with 43 high school students gaining valuable work experience in a wide variety of the city's business and agriculture community.

Students have worked part time for years, but in the past it has been a scramble for a limited number of after school jobs with no advance preparation on the part of job seekers. Under the new programs at Yoe High School, C. Tittsworth, Mrs. Bob Foster and Edward Foster, faculty advisors help line up jobs that will give students real career training. Instruction at school is coordinated to help the student with his particular job and manuals relating to individual job training are used in classroom work.

Homemaking and agriculture students generally work in jobs covered by those fields. Distributive Education students are employed in retail, wholesale and service occupations such as selling, stocking and advertising.

Visual aid equipment is used to good effect in the distributive education classroom. Students practice job interviewing and sales demonstrations under the watchful eye of a camera that tapes the action for replay and study towards improved technique.

Foster, who has seven years experience in retailing and a degree from the University of Texas at Arlington, said the distributive education program was for both the college bound and those who plan to work after high school graduation. "In either case, the DE student has gained valuable experience," Foster said.

Most of the students work 15 hours a week. They take a regular class schedule in the mornings and in addition receive school credit for their work time. Each student has his own study plan. It includes a list of what he will do on the job, related information to be studied in class and suggested sources for securing information.

Discussing the program, Mrs. Bob Foster said "The overall philosophy of Yoe High School is to provide student-centered curriculum and this type of program achieves that."

Pictures of the students and endorsements of local businesses appear on pages 5 and 6 of this issue.

150 Feet North ...

Your Herald has been across the street from Milam Courthouse for about 35 years. Years before it was located away from this neighborhood.

We are patient. We have watched a great deal of business go out of town, both with bid and without in printing and office supplies.

We watch the county commissioners vacillate between accepting low bids and not accepting them, qualifying on whoever raises the most thunder about how things ought to be.

The Courthouse seems to respond to pressure, almost anyone's. So here's ours. We don't bid on county printing anymore because the bids are too low to justify the obligation of seeing some of them through. But a low bid is a low bid.

If out-of-county firms are going to bid, their low bids should be accepted. If there is some kind of wall around Milam County, then the low bid within the county should be accepted. But we don't see any wall in insurance, in printing, in office supplies or anything else.

Courthouse people have gone out of their way over the years to fight progress in this community, which was their business as citizens, but not as county public officials. It was their resistance which helped slow modernization of the courthouse and stopped construction of a new jail.

This is another sign the courthouse leans this way or that. This is another reason that local government has lost influence to higher levels of government.

Quite a number are running for the post of commissioner in Rockdale and Northwest Milam County. Maybe some new commissioners will examine the problem and realize the way things are, nobody understands, particularly that old newspaper 150 feet north of the courthouse.

Direct Energy At Source...

Hogs in West Cameron? Quite possible.

Horses too in some lots around town. There used to be a lot more livestock in the city limits, but this is changing.

Hogs ought to be controlled. So should the hulks of old cars, kitchen appliances and shattered buildings long past usefulness.

All city officials have to do is invoke existing ordinances, apply the Southern Building Code or get neighbors of citizens to sign a complaint. A combination will solve such problems.

Cameron is beyond the day when it can tolerate this 19th Century vision of itself to continue. It not fairly controlled, the vision, like some delapidated part of town, is a nightmare allowed to continue.

Let's support city government and health officials in eliminating such problems. And let's direct energy at the source of the problems, not the ones trying to do something about them.

Psychiatric Report Points To Sweden's Welfare State

By Stephen Croall
Reuter Correspondent

STOCKHOLM
A psychiatric report which constitutes the first systematic attempt to diagnose Sweden's welfare state in terms of mental health rather than economic health paints a gloomy picture of a merciless, unfriendly society.

The Swedish man is under constant pressure to maintain his status and "do his duty." The Swedish woman tries desperately to live up to demands that she be both emancipated and domesticated. The early joy and curiosity of Swedish children are swiftly crushed by the coldness and rebukes of their elders, according to the report.

It points to the "vicious circle" in which of high rate of economic growth is necessary to pay the cost of looking after those who cannot "keep up," but as their number steadily increases a higher growth rate is needed, which only results in more people being unable to keep up -- and so on.

The conclusion to be drawn from the report is that a country's welfare can no longer be measured simply by its standard of living but also by its "standard of life," and that Swedes are increasingly sacrificing their mental health for improvements in their material environment.

The report, commissioned by the National Social Welfare authorities, who have been instructed by parliament to investigate the rapidly growing problem of mental ill-health, notes that the dilemma is not solely a Swedish one -- it is reflected throughout the Western world.

The report, entitled "Mental Health and the Human Environment," is the first of a series written by Dr. Hans Lohman, who is attached to the social welfare board and is considered Sweden's top expert on psychiatry and socio-medicine.

A compendium of literature on the subject and his own findings, it is considered a first step towards the establishment of a national institute of mental health demanded by several members of parliament.

Parliament's decision to investigate the situation was taken against a background of spiralling mental care costs and a critical shortage of qualified psychiatrists.

The latest available figures show that the number of in-patients admitted to mental institutions rose from 73,000 in 1969 to 83,000 in 1970, at a daily cost per patient of more than 20 dollars.

Dateline Austin...

Candidates Alarmed At Voter Registration Lag

AUSTIN
Texans have just a few days more -- until April 5 -- to register to vote in the May 6 primary elections.

Major state candidates, including Gov. Preston Smith, viewed with alarm registration totals so far. They noted that less than 3.8 million had registered as of last weekend, although there are nearly 7.7 million qualified voters in the state.

Present registrations are trailing the corresponding period in 1968 by 294,000 and the 1970 figure by more than 370,000.

In 1968, observed gubernatorial candidate Frances Farenthold, 64 per cent of qualified voters were registered before the primaries. This year, only 48 per cent of the potentially-eligible are registered. Former U.S. Sen. Ralph Yarborough pointed out that 63.4 per cent of those qualified registered in 1970, and the 1972 dropoff is reflected in many "working class neighborhoods."

Nearly one million more should register by April 5 if previous patterns are followed, Smith said.

Under the state's new voter registration system, which candidates Farenthold and Yarborough lauded as one of the nation's best, citizens have until 30 days before any election to register and become eligible to vote.

The U.S. Supreme Court threw some confusion over the registration system with a ruling that 12 months state and six months local residency requirements for voter eligibility (like those of Texas) are unconstitutional.

The High Court said 30 days' residency is sufficient for any state. Secretary of State Bob Bullock took the case under study. Special legislative attention may be necessary.

TPA POLLS

Editors and publishers were polled at the annual meeting of the North and East Texas Press Association in Palestine last week.

First question was -- "Who will carry your county in the primary?" In the Democratic Governor's race, the newsmen voted: Barnes, 25; Briscoe, 20; Smith, 8 and Farenthold, 3. Republican gubernatorial candidates rated were: Fay, 12; Grover and Reagan, 9 each.

In the Lieutenant Governor's race it was: Hall, 27, Connally, 14 and Hobby 12.

The editors selected Sanders 28 to 19 over Yarborough in the U.S. Senate primary.

Asked whom they would vote for personally, the tally read: Briscoe, 19, Barnes, 14; Smith, 8 and Farenthold, 5.

They selected Hall, 20 over Hobby 10 and Connally, 7. In the U.S. Senate primary they voted for Sanders 18 to 7 over Yarborough. In the 1972 General Election poll they voted for Tower 21 to 5 over Sanders.

SPEAKER'S BATTLE

House Speaker Gus Mutscher, appealing a bribery consent conviction in Sharpstown stock scandals, announced he will step aside as speaker.

The long-expected move set the stage for a head-on battle for the key presiding officer's post when Gov. Smith calls a special legislative session.

Reps Rayford Price of Palestine and L. DeWitt Hale of Corpus Christi both claim majority support to take over the gavel during the special session. Hale has agreed to serve only as interim speaker and pledges he will not seek the job in the 1973 regular session. Price is considered the leading candidate for speaker in 1973, but he wants to take over at the first opportunity to enhance his long-term chances.

Blue Laser To Pierce Ocean Depths

STARKVILLE, Miss.

For the first time in history man stands on the threshold of being able to look into the ocean depths and to establish undersea communications.

This barrier to man's reach is being broken as a result of research in the department of aerophysics and aerospace engineering at Mississippi State University.

The project is the development of a continuously operated high powered argon gas-dynamic laser -- a blue laser beam.

Blue is the only color that can pierce the darkness of the ocean.

Among many other practical uses, the development will enable man to see from 10 to 100 times farther than he now can see searching for fish.

When fully operational this laser will also add to the nation's arsenal of defense and will allow submarine-to-submarine communications for the first time in history.

The blue laser will carry over 400 times more power than an infrared laser before the air literally "burns up" or causes a lighting bolt.

hopefuls line up behind the Hale interim bid. Rep. R. B. McAlister of Lubbock, radio-television executive, announced he also will seek the speaker's position in 1973.

INSURANCE RATES

Insurance Board Chairman Larry Teaver lambasted two Board colleagues for proposing a $27 million homeowners increase which he termed "unnecessary, unjustifiable and an insult to the intelligence of the people of Texas."

Board members Ned Price and Durwood Manford denied any new rates have been finally adopted and said they likely won't be before June 1.

Teaver, who advocates a $14 million decrease in fire and other building coverage, called another meeting for March 29 to review Board actions and to recommend an "economic trend factor" be kept out of rates pending a study of the price freeze and inflation.

DEMOS DROP DST

Democrats ignored a legislative resolution directing a May 6 statewide (non-binding) vote on daylight saving time. Republicans put the issue on their ballots.

Authors of the resolution, Reps. Hilary Doran of Del Rio and John Poerner of Hondo, blasted Democratic Chairman Roy Orr of DeSoto who accepted responsibility for the omission. They also petitioned the State Democratic Executive Committee to reconsider and overrule Orr.

COURTS SPEAK

The State Supreme Court April 26 will hear a lawsuit concerning invasion of privacy and whether a telephone company owes customers protection from a wiretap by an employee.

Letters to the Editor

March 22, 1972

Dear Mr. Luecke:

It's becoming more obvious every day that John Hill is missing few opportunities for highly personal and abusive attacks on me in his campaign for Attorney General. I have done my best not to get down in the dirt with him, because it's far better for a candidate to try to run on his own merits rather than the supposed demerits of the opposition. After seeing some of his press statements and television ads, though, it's tough to hold my tongue.

The most irritating charge

he makes, I think, is his attempt to link me with Frank Sharp and charge me with inaction on the Sharp scandal. The District Attorney of Travis County, whom I helped in this matter, has written me the attached letter, which I thought would be of interest to you.

During the course of the campaign I would be happy to give you and your staff any other information you may want on the activities of the Attorney General's office.

Kindest personal regards,
Sincerely,
Crawford C. Martin

FHA Rules On Fees For B-M-F Water Supply Corp.

ROGERS
The Bell-Milam-Falls Supply Corporation met in a special called meeting March 17 at the First State Bank in Rogers, because of a new ruling by the Farm Home Administration concerning membership fees.

The Farm Home Administration has set April 1, 1972 as the date that all previous membership fees of $50 would be honored on all water systems in the United States, according to W. H. McCormick, president of the Bell-Milam-Falls Supply Corporation.

McCormick said the directors voted unanimously to accept all previous applications at the $50 rate. Any application or add-on taken after April 1, 1972 will be at the membership fee of $100.

McCormick further said that any member who has sent in the $50 additional fee will be reimbursed within the near future for that additional fee. McCormick said that there will be about 60 members to receive this $50 reimbursement.

New members are urged to contact V. L. Wallace, Travis; Jack Walzel, Buckholts; Calvin Rauchi, Rogers; U. L. Pierce, Holland; or mail the application to Drawer E, Rogers, Texas, 76569.

William Garner, engineer, reported that the construction phase of the water system should be completed by April 1, and that cleanup work and fence repair work will continue until April 29, or until the system is accepted.

Plans are being discussed according to McCormick, to connect the 15 water systems in Bell County with a total membership of more than 2,700 members. One thousand new members could be added to this water system if the consolidation of systems is made. Also, in case of well trouble in one water system, with a consolidation program, all meters could always be served.

Gardening Nature's Way Is Club Program

"Organic gardening is nature's way to build living, healthy soil and proper insect balance," Mrs. Charles Brady told a meeting of the Fleur de Lis Garden Club Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Brady, who has been gardening 'nature's way' for the past 4 years, was guest speaker for the March garden club meeting at the home of Mrs. Monroe Fuchs. She was introduced by Mrs. Ed Magre, program chairman.

Mrs. Brady suggested preparing the garden area early (a few months before planting) working organic material such as decomposed leaves, hay, straw, into the ground. She said most soils in this area also need natural products for minerals such as cotton seed meal, bone meal, green sand or granite dust, lignite and manure. She suggested one of the pleasures of organic gardening was that after the first year the garden plot will not need plowing again.

Mrs. Brady said the gardener shouldn't be discouraged by his first attempts at organic gardening. She said they had only minor success their first year and were bothered by insects. The second she said there were fewer insects and a better garden. The third year they reaped "a tremendous yield of vegetables and had almost no insects."

Mrs. Durwood Cobb presided at the business meeting following the program. Members voted to present $10 to the Cameron Public Library landscape fund in observance of Arbor Day. In other business it was announced that each member would be responsible for preparing a hanging basket to decorate City Park during Folk Fete weekend, June 9-10.

Punch, fruit pie, coffee and a sampling of alfalfa seed salad were served in the dining room. An arrangement of tulips and azaleas centered the serving table. Assisting at the punch and coffee service were Mrs. James Camp and Mrs. Dana Monroe.

Mrs. Fuchs and Mrs. Don Humble were co-hostesses for the meeting.

Cameron Cooperative Education

Everyday 43 Yoe High School students leave school following morning classes and go to jobs in the Cameron area. They are participating in a vocational training program that covers jobs related to agriculture, home economics, sales and services.

The program of cooperation between the business community and the public school works because there is something in it for everyone. It provides the student with a combination of theoretical and practical job training; it provides the businessman with capable, mature, career-minded employees.

Distributive Education

The program is directed at people whose needs might otherwise be neglected: people who may not go to college but who want to engage in profitable and challenging careers.

Experience in Cameron this year has been that cooperative education and distributive education students have not just fallen into the business world. They have chosen to enter it. They are interested in a career, not just a job. They are eager and enthusiastic young people who are anxious to try out the theories and skills they have been taught in the classroom.

THE INFORMED CONSUMER

BY CRAWFORD C. MARTIN
Attorney General of Texas

You are at home busily cleaning the house when you hear a knock on the door. You answer to find a man dressed as a delivery boy standing on your porch with a panel truck parked in front of your house. He politely inquires as to the whereabouts of Mrs. Jones, your neighbor, and you inform him that you do not know where she is. With this, he gets a sad look on his face and informs you that he has a C.O.D. package for Mrs. Jones and she said it was very important that she get the package today since it was to be a present for a friend of hers who was having a surprise party tonight. He doesn't know what to do since he won't be able to come back again and he really doesn't want to disappoint Mrs. Jones. It is at this time that a happy glow comes across his face and he hits upon a plan whereby you can do your neighbor a big favor. All you have to do is pay him the C.O.D. charges and then get your money back from Mrs. Jones. This way she will receive the package in time and not be disappointed. After all, the C.O.D. charges amount to only $10. Being a friendly neighbor, you give the delivery man $10 and he goes on his way leaving you with a warm feeling inside, knowing that you have helped Mrs. Jones. Later in the day when Mrs. Jones returns, the warm feeling begins to turn to doubt because Mrs. Jones informs you that she has not ordered any C.O.D. packages. You open the package to inspect its contents and find only rocks. Another take-off on this scheme, and perhaps even more insidious, is practiced where there has been a recent death in a family. The knock on the door in this case presents a person who has a package for Mr. Smith at this address. When informed that Mr. Smith has recently passed away, the stranger gets a sad look on his face and says that Mr. Smith was in his store last week and picked out a beautiful gift for Mrs. Smith. It was to be a surprise and Mr. Smith was so happy because he just knew that the gift would bring Mrs. Smith so much pleasure. Sentiment often pushes the person to go ahead and accept the item and pay for it, usually at an inflated price, and even though they don't need it, because it had been picked out for them by their deceased loved one. Be an informed consumer. Don't fall for rackets similar to those above described. When a stranger knocks on your door and asks for money, demand proof of his identity. Know all the facts before you part with your money. For a small entryway, paneling of handsome wood such as western hemlock or cedar lends a simple elegance, without confusing pattern.

Seven Seas Park Features Pirate, World Oceans

ARLINGTON Construction of Seven Seas the city-owned sea-life park in Arlington has been completed, and the park is ready to open. That's the official announcement that comes from Hollis Pollard, general manager of the new marine attraction. The nine-million dollar attraction opened March 18. Over a million and a half guests are expected to tour the park and visit nearby Arlington Stadium for major league baseball.

The 35-acre facility is themed from seven seas of the world. The various areas include the Arctic Ocean, Mediterranean Sea, Indian Ocean, Sea of Cortez, Caribbean Sea, Sea of Japan and South Seas.

After guests leave their automobiles, they may board a tram for a ride to the entrance cave. Here, they will find a seafood restaurant, gift shops, guest-relations office and a first-aid station. The first stop will be a feeder seal pool.

From here, on to the Caribbean Sea where the park's pirate ship is located. The "Bona Venture" was constructed by Kettenburg Marine in San Diego and transported by rail to Arlington. It is "moored" in the park's main lagoon. Guests are free to climb aboard and sail on adventures of their wildest imagination. The vessel was commissioned into the Texas Navy by Governor Preston Smith.

This trip continues to the Arctic Ocean. Walk through an igloo, complete with cool temperatures and ice. Board an iceberg and view the sights of the Arctic. See the northern lights, view Eskimo families, see polar bears, and the abominable snowman. Over $300,000 have been invested in the animated ride, according to a park spokesman.

If the Arctic Ocean is too cold, visitors can walk just 30 yards to the Mediterranean Sea. Here the park's dozen dolphins will perform to delight everyone. The mammals jump through hoops, walk across the water on their tails, and even sing for their audiences. The theatre will seat some 2,200 people for the thirty-minute show.

Next, comes a trip to the Sea of Japan. Exotic displays from the Orient, along with oriental music set the scene for the Japanese adventure. One can feed hundreds of colorful Koi fish while sipping Japanese tea and munching on fortune cookies.

For excitement, we move to the Indian Ocean, home of "Newtka", the killer whale. This two-ton charmer will amaze the audience as her trainer rides on her back around the pool. Over 713,000 gallons of salt water is required to furnish the whale's home.

Performing penguins can be found in the Sea of Cortez. Besides roller skating, the penguins draw attention by various antics and behaviors. Sea lions balance a ball on their nose, as well as play a silver trumpet. "Yukon", one of the park's sea lions, plays baseball like his pal, Ted Williams. Two huge elephant seals bellow as they await their turn to perform. "Pancho" tips the scales at about 2,500 pounds, and highlights his performance by smoking a pipe.

The cool breezes of the South Seas summon guests to beneath the water's surface for an aquatic performance with underwater actors. This theatre-in-the-round is considered by many to be the finest underwater attraction in the Southwest.

Several educational exhibits are found throughout the entire park. Officials of the city-owned facility say some 5 1/2 hours are required to see the entire attraction. According to personnel officials of Seven Seas, over 800 young people will be employed during the summer.

Admission is $2.75 for children (under 12 years of age) and $3.75 for adults.

Crewless Ship Takes Long Trip

SOLOMON ISLANDS One hundred years after the mysterious unmanned voyage of the Mary Celeste, another ship -- the Hing Lee -- has made a similar journey.

The 39-foot Solomon Island trading launch, Hing Lee, survived a three-day, 100 mile crewless trip. Amazingly avoiding the reefs and islands of the South Pacific, it battled through a cyclone before coming to rest on a remote island.

In 1872, near the Portuguese Azores of the North Atlantic, the American brig Mary Celeste was discovered sailing towards Europe. Everything seemed normal -- except that there was no one on board.

The mystery of the two-masted, square-rigged Mary Celeste was never solved. The events surrounding the journey of the launch Hing Lee are clear.

Cyclone Carlotta struck the boat late on Jan. 12 as it was moored in Point Cruz Harbour on the island of Guadalcanal.

The launch was torn from its moorings by a 70 knot wind which carried it and crew of six out to sea. They managed to start the engine and tried frantically to head the launch back to the wharf.

But strong winds pushed the boat into the open sea - whipped up into huge waves by the cyclone.

The crew launched a small dinghy and, leaving the engine of the Hing Lee running, they abandoned ship.

The dinghy was immediately swamped by heavy seas. In the dark, the six men started to swim. Five of them made it to the coral beach. The body of the sixth was washed ashore three days later.

Thankful that they were alive, the five survivors held no hope for their ship, thinking that if it was not swamped by the heavy seas, it would be pounded to pieces on a reef or beach.

Three days later and 100 miles away, a Catholic mission on the southern end of the island of Malaita, north-east of Guadalcanal, saw a launch drifting a short distance offshore.

Villagers and missionaries went out in a boat to discover the Hing Lee was a ghost ship.

They towed it to shore. Its engine had stopped by now and the fuel tanks were dry.

It had somehow survived a storm voyage, escaped destruction on coral reefs, to arrive at Malaita -- the largest island in the Solomons.

Faulkner Manuscripts Discovered

By Edna Atkinson
Reuters Correspondent

OXFORD, Miss.

Important manuscripts by Mississippi's Nobel Prize winning author William Faulkner have been discovered here in the antebellum Faulkner home, Rowan Oak.

The manuscripts have recently been placed in the custody of the University of Mississippi by Mrs. Faulkner.

Literary authorities say the manuscripts, many of which were written during the early years of Faulkner's career, will be of great value to scholars in determining and understanding the creative process as well as the development of a great writer.

Faulkner did most of his writing at Rowan Oak, which adjoins and is now in the custody of the University of Mississippi for preservation and for visits by scholars.

Discovery of the manuscripts occurred when Dr. James Webb, chairman of the university's Department of English, arranged for treatment of the house for termites.

While Webb's assistant, Beverley Smith, was inspecting a closet under the front hall stairway, he found the papers in a large cardboard box. Arrangements were made immediately for their security in the vault of the Lyceum at the University.

Included in the box was the answer to a mystery propounded by numerous Faulkner biographers: what happened to the manuscript of "Pylon."

The university acquired page one of the manuscript a number of years ago from a donor but the remainder was missing.

The cardboard box at Rowan Oak contained the rest of the manuscript.

Pigskin Used To Treat Burns

TORONTO

Pigs are being specially raised so that their skin can be used as a life-saving treatment for people suffering from severe burns.

Surgeons at Toronto's Scarborough General Hospital are using pigskin almost exclusively as dressing in severe burn cases, following the recovery of a woman with near-fatal burns after treatment with the revolutionary technique.

The technique was developed and is used extensively by the Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio. Scarborough General's burns unit is the first to try it out in Canada.

Dr. Lloyd Carlsen, the hospital's senior plastic surgeon, said he has treated about 25 severely burned patients with pigskin, notably Mrs. Rejean Rancourt, 29, of Kapuskasing.

The young mother removed a smudge off her nightie with cleaning fluid, then lit a cigarette. Her gown burst into flames and she suffered third-degree burns to almost 70 per cent of her body.

Since the accident, more than 100 square feet of pigskin from specially raised pigs in the United States have been employed by surgeons in treating her injuries.

Generally, burns to 40 per cent of the body are considered fatal, especially if they are third-degree. In Mrs. Rancourt's case, doctors told relatives at first there was little hope, but she is due home this month.

The plastic surgeon said the Brooke medical research team was attempting to find a substitute for homocrafts -- where skin is taken from one person and grafted onto another -- when it ran across pigskin.

He said doctors prefer autograft-moving skin from one part of a patient's body to another -- because of the rejection factor inherent in homografts. However, in cases like Mrs. Rancourt's the burns were so severe that she did not have enough skin left to cover the damaged areas.

The burn unit medical team took 12 skin grafts from her legs and shoulder, but there was not enough to continue. It took her longer and longer to grow new tissue -- 10 days the first time and 19 days the second.

Encountering similar problems in its early efforts, the Brooke research team looked to the animal kingdom as a source of possible heterografts. Dog's skin was a possibility but eventually was turned down because of the hair.

The researchers settled for pigs and the dressings now are commonly called porcine dressings. The Americans also developed a process where the pigs are raised in a sterile environment.

Because pigs have thick skins, several slices can be made from one site for heterografts. The dressings are sent in rolls in vacuum bottles to Scarborough General.

The dressings -- about 12 one-thousandths of an inch thick -- are "Closer to natural coverage than gauze," Carlsen said, and permit the surgeons to leave porcine-covered burns exposed.

If the pigskin dressing "takes" and grows to the patient's skin, it will be rejected when the blood supply is cut off. The grafted skin dies and sloughs off, much like a scab, without any pain to the patient.

Carlsen pointed out that porcine dressings are "not meant to replace autografts."

Bullfighters Threaten To Strike

By Tom Butler

MADRID

Bullfighting, Spain's ancient and sometimes controversial spectacle, is in a deep crisis.

Just at a time when many aficionados (fans) are questioning whether the spectacle is as good as it used to be, the bullfighters themselves are threatening to go on strike next month.

Led by Paco Camino, the brightest star of the "Fiesta Brava" ("The Noble Art" of bullfighting) now that the famed El Cordobes has retired, the matadors appear determined to pursue a course that has united them for the first time in many seasons.

"We mean what we say. Our personal feuds and animosities have been forgotten for now. We are going to see this through together," said the popular bullfighter Angel Teruel after the decision to strike was taken on March 7.

The walkout is scheduled to begin on April 18 -- opening day of the colorful Seville spring fair, one of the most important events on the bullfighting calendar.

At the root of the bullfighters' discontent is a taxation system which is based on their earnings from the previous year. This is used to project, for taxation purposes, the income they are likely to get in the current year.

They say that, in effect, if a matador has an exceptionally good season the previous year and then is gored or otherwise finds himself unable to fight for a good part of the current season, he could find himself faced with a tax bill larger than his earnings.

Unless the finance ministry, which has appointed a panel of tax experts to study the bullfighters' demands, agrees to some reform, many important corridas could be affected.

Controlled Heartbeats Taught

By Syl Silver
Reuters Correspondent

BALTIMORE, Maryland

Heart patients at Baltimore's Gerontology Research Center are being taught by doctors to control the rate at which their hearts beat by mental concentration.

"We are teaching people to use the nerves to the heart," said Dr. Eugene Bleeker, a clinical associate at the research center. He said these nerves are not used ordinarily.

Bleeker told of work with six patients suffering from uncoordinated contractions of the heart's upper chamber or atrial fibrillation.

All patients had been on digitalis, a drug used to control the rate at which the heart beats. The study's object was to find out whether concentration could be used to replace the drug.

The electrodes of an electrocardiograph machine were attached to the patient's chest and pulse points. The machine was hooked up to a computer.

When a green light flashed, the patient was supposed to try to speed up heart beat; the red light meant to slow it down. The yellow light flashed when the patient was performing the requested task -- either speeding up or slowing down.

Bleeker said some patients consistently slowed heart rate with mental concentration, and some patients consistently speeded the rate.

He added that some patients learn to control the rate relatively quickly but that most require three or more weeks to attain control.

Doubling As SnowFences

Madison, Wisc.—(HK)—Galvanized steel glare barriers are doing more than preventing headlights from blinding motorists in Wisconsin. They are also doubling as snow fences—thus performing two safety functions.

The Wisconsin Department of Transportation recently finished testing two kinds of metal glare barriers to see if they could perform the dual safety function. The problem: the metal had to be strong enough to withstand the heavy impact of snowplows, yet remain effective for their anti-glare function.

According to Milwaukee County district chief maintenance engineer Bernard R. Loo-katch, "Experience gained on the first glare screen project in this district indicates that screening substantially reduced headlight glare. . . . A pre-painted aluminum screen was found unsatisfactory because snowplowing operations caused the screen to stretch and bulge. The galvanized steel screen was unaffected by snowplowing operations."

Galvanized steel anti-glare screens are a relatively new safety product for our nation's highways. They are normally installed above galvanized steel median barriers on posts attached to the guard rail posts, and extend two or more feet above the guardrail. While they can be seen through, they reflect the rays of automobile headlights away from oncoming motorists in the opposite lanes.

Junior Bowling Program Success

A new junior bowling program that started as an experiment is going over in a big way, as children from 12 to 16 are learning fine points of the game from Mr. and Mrs. Gene Goode. The Goodes started the program last summer and it has grown to a membership of about 75 young bowlers. They bowl from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays at the Cameron Bowling Lanes. Leagues have been organized and sponsors found for the leagues. The young bowlers come from Cameron, Rockdale, Minerva, Sharp and San Gabriel. Goode is a supervisor for Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. in Cameron and Rockdale and Mrs. Goode is bookkeeper and supervisor for A. C. Tuttle in Temple.

P&W Commission Lowers Age For Public Hunts

AUSTIN The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission has given Texas youth a vote of confidence by lowering the minimum age requirement for participation in public hunts on state game management areas.

The prospective hunter must be at least 12 years of age instead of 17 as previously required to participate. However, stringent rules govern the youngsters. First, the "under-17" hunter must follow the usual application process for restricted hunts. Drawings are held to decide which applicants get to participate in these hunts.

The under-17 applicant must apply as a member of a party hunt, not as an individual. The maximum party size is four hunters. In addition, the under-17

'Massive' Ballot Predicted In May Primary Election

"If you think your ballot was confusing in previous years, just wait until the primaries May 6," Rep. Dan Kubiak said in his March 17 newsletter.

There will be a "massive" ballot with 146 names of candidates in state wide races, he noted. "With the removal of any significant filing fees by the courts, it can get even worse in future years," he said.

Both the Democratic and Republican parties will place an anti-busing amendment on the May 6 primary ballot.

Kubiak said there may be no primaries unless the Governor will find some solution for financing them or possibly call a special session to provide for needed revenue to the parties in each of the counties.

CALLING FOR REFORMS "We are calling for meaningful reforms in state government so that the wasteful spending will be eliminated," Kubiak said.

Other reforms needed are:

1. Election of the Speaker by secret ballot.
2. Limit the Speaker of the House to one term.
3. Restrict the power of the Speaker to presiding officer.
4. Reserve limited seniority in the House for all members to retain committee assignments.
5. Reduce the number of committee from 45 to 20.
6. Let the committees elect their own chairman and vice chairman.
7. Limit the conference committees to adjusting the differences between the two houses.

Yoe Downs Lampasas

By Marilyn Hauk

The Yoemen Baseball Team stampeded the Lampasas Badgers 8-2 Thursday night.

Gary Thweatt was winning pitcher striking seven people out and walking no one.

In the first inning the Yoemen made one of their scores when Lonnie Scott stole home. Lampasas remained pointless.

In the top of the second inning Lampasas' Storms replaced Terry at pitcher. The Yoemen continued scoring and made seven points. Making runs were Craig Friemal, Jeff Smitherman, Gary Horning, Lonnie Scott, Mike Trdy, Pat Scheguit, and David Horning.

When the third inning came Lampasas once again changed pitcher when Prugh replaced Storms.

Hobby Calls For Warfare Against Drug Pushers

"The time for full-scale warfare against the pushers of hard drugs in this state is overdue," declared Bill Hobby, Democratic candidate for Lt. Governor, today in Fort Worth.

Speaking to the Junior Bar Association, the 40-year-old executive editor of the Houston Post proposed a tough and comprehensive campaign against the hard drug pusher and cited statistics that nailed the size and scope of the drug problem in Texas.

"Drug use is laying waste to the most precious resource we possess as a people --- the intelligence and vitality of our youth," continued Hobby. "The time for inaction and half-hearted measures is long past."

Hobby called for the rationalization of drug laws, urging that the offense for first time possession of marijuana for personal use be reduced from a felony to a misdemeanor. "This would increase the young people's respect for the law and make more credible the warnings about truly dangerous drugs," he said.

At the same time, Hobby urged the stiffening of penalties for the sale of hard drugs and the stringent enforcement of drug laws. He suggested that the first time sale of hard drugs to a minor be punishable by 20 years to life imprisonment with no probation, suspended sentence or bail.

To stop the flow of drug traffic, Hobby called for special task forces in the Attorney General, district attorney, sheriff and police department offices to coordinate federal drug abuse programs. He asked that our state law enforcement agencies be beefed up along the southern border to shut off the supply from Mexico.

Hobby's program also included a realistic drug educational campaign and more statewide rehabilitation centers.

To set his plan into action, Hobby proposed a committee of Texans in the fields of law, medicine, law enforcement, government and education to draft detailed legislation on drug abuse. This would be his number one priority as Lt. Governor, he said.

You Don't Say . .

CALUMNY if you are pronouncing it kuh LUM nee.

CALUMNY, which means a false and malicious accusation or report made of injure another, is pronounced KAALUM nee. You could be guilty of a CALUMNY, your statement could be CALUMNIOUS (kuh LUM nee us), you could CALUMNIATE (kuh LUM nee ate) but --- fortunately --- you would NOT be a CALUMNIST (CAL um nist).

Imagine the possible confusion in spelling CALUMNIST and COLUMNIST! No -- you would be a CALUMNIATOR (kuh LUM nee AY ter).
